DEATH'S DOINGS.

CAVANAUGH.

MICHAEL CAVANAUGH, Sr., aged 76 years, passed away last Sunday evening, after a long and serious illness, covering a period of ten years. Deceased leaves a family of ten children, all grown to womanhood and manhood, viz: Mrs. Mary Kahley, Johnsonburg; Frank and Michael, at home; John, residing on Clear Creek, Thos. at St. Marys, Malcahi and Andrew, in business at Pittsburg; Mrs. Maggie Trebswether, at home; Mrs. Nellie Robinson, St. Marys; James, who resides in Oregon; also one brother, Thomas, who resides at Williamsport, but too feeble to attend the funeral. All of the children were present at the funeral, except James, who resides too far from Emporium to make the journey in time for the funeral.

Deceased has resided in Emporium about forty years, working most of that time for Pennsy, R. R., until illness compelled him to take to his bed. The funeral was held at St. Mark's church yesterday morning and was largely attended. This makes the third death in this family within a few years—first the mother, then a brother and now father.

Judge Green Officially Busy.

Judge B. W. Green is attending strictly to his duties as president Judge of this judicial district, holding argument court in all three counties, thereby catching up with the work long delayed by the illness of the late Judge Mayer. Judge Green held court at Lock Haven last Thursday and Friday and disposed of a large list of causes. A regular term will be held at Lock Haven for two weeks, last week in Sept. and first week in Oct. Court will be held at Ridgway second week in Oct., followed by one week at Emporium, commencing Monday, Oct. 22. We hear only praise of Judge Green wherever he has held court, his courteous and impartial rulings having given general satisfaction. All over this district the sentiment in favor of Judge Green's election upon a non-political ticket is rapidly forging to the front and hundreds of democrats will champion his election. The people know what they want and will have it.

Pleasant Home Wedding.

A pleasant home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. Weisenflu, West Sixth street, Monday at high noon, the contracting parties being Miss Lena Weisenflu and Mr. Geo. Neidlinger, of Ridgway, formerly of Emporium, Rev. Mr. Calvin, pastor of First Baptist Church. The bride was becomingly gowned in silk organdie, while the groom wore the conventional black dress suit. The wedding guests were confined strictly to the family and relatives, with the exception of Mrs M. A. Rockwell, a dear friend o the bride. After hearty congratulations, an elegant dinner was served, after which the bridal party departed on 4:20 Flyer for Ridgway, their future home. The bride and groom were recipients of numerous handsome and useful presents, tokens of esteem from their very many friends. The PRESS, as well as all who know them, join in congratulations and cordially recommend them to the good people of Ridgway.

New Proprietor.

Robert D. Graham has taken possession of the New Valley House, at Cameron, having purchased the furniture and rented this well known house. The property will be improved and fitted up in first-class style. Robt. has many friends, in this county, who will remember him when in Cameron.

Big Contract.

The Calder Brick works has been awarded a large contract by the city of Lock Haven. The reputation of the Calder brick is daily increasing and orders, big ones at that, are pouring in. Supt. Walker is a Captain and pushes along the work. We understand the capacity of the plant will be doubled. Good for Calder.

Furnished Rooms.

Five or six furnished rooms to rent, with bath. Suitable for light housekeeping. Apply at PRESS office, by letter only, addressed to "Rooms."

Thank Them Personally.

A exchange very truthfully remarks: Editors would be the last men on earth to knowlingly hurt the feelings of their subscribers or citizens, especially at a time when the dark winged messenger of death has brought sorrow to the home, but it is from the best of motives that attention is called to the custom of publishing "cards of thanks." It is a custom that has outgrown its purpose, if it ever had one. When sickness and death come to your home it is only natural that your friends and neighbors should do what they could to assist you. They would be heathens if they did not. They know from the expression of your face that you are thankful and deeply appreciate all they do, and it is not necessary to rush into print and tell the world that your neighbors were kind when you were in trouble. The reading public has become tired of the old stereotyped "card of thanks." You can express to your friends by a look or word of thankfulness in a more impressive manner than you can in a column of cold type.

Bought Nice Home Here.

Charles Butler has purchased the Tom Catlin house on Harrrison street and will move his family here from Emporium at once and will occupy the new home. Mr. Butler bought this property for a thousand dollars, the best real estate bargain made in Port Allegany in a long time. It is in a good location, cheap insurance and very desirable in every way. The Reporter unites with others in welcoming Mr. Butler and family to Port Allegany.—Port Allegany Reporter. Well may our Port Allegany friends welcome this excellent family to their town. Words cannot express the regret of the PRESS and hundreds of Cameron county friends over their departure. They were held in the highest esteem in Emporium and will be greatly missed.

Base Ball.

The game between Emporium and St. Marys nines at Keystone Park last Saturday was won by Emporium by a score of 8 to 7. Outside of one bad inning for each team the game would pass creditably.

On Tuesday the home team met its old rival Renovo and put up one of the worst exhibitions of base ball ever witnessed on the home grounds. Hemphill and Overturf were the battery for Emporium and played good ball Hemphill struck out ten men and had but a few scattered hits and with good support the game would have been close. Fisher, in left field, played a star game for the home team. Some of the boys were up in the air for fair. Score 13 to 1.

Quarterly Meeting.

Quarterly meeting service will be held at the Emporinm Free Methodist Church, beginning on Friday evening and lasting over the Sabbath.

Preaching Friday evening at 7:30; Saturday evening at 7:30 There will be a missonary rally. The missionary sermon will be preached by Rev. Alfred J. Hill. Lovefeast sabbath morning at 9:30, preaching at 11:00, followed by communion service. Children's missionary meeting at 3:00 p. m. Preaching Sabbath evening at 7:30. The district elder, Rev. A. J. Hill, will have charge of the meeting. All are welcome.

J. NELSON BENNETT, Pastor.

Wedding Bells.

Miss Ada Pearl Houser of this place and Mr. William Fred Mason, of Renove were married July 18th by the Rev. Bennett, pastor of the Free Methodist church, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. S. S. Hackett. Miss Rose Danforth, cousin of the bride acted as bridesmaid, and Mr. Orwin G. Houser, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason left for eastern cities to spend their honeymoon after which they will reside at Renovo. The PRESS extends congratulations.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The nomination of Captain Barclay, of Cameron county, for congress in the Twenty-First district will add strength to the Republican ticket in that county. Little Cameron is at the front this year, with a president judge on the bench of the Twenty fifth Judicial district and a congressional nominee our neighboring county naturally feels a little proud. Judge Green and Congressman-to be Barclay are men of high character and are an honor to any county.—Lock Haven Republican.

Captain Barclay is perhaps freer of personal animosities that any other man in Cameron county that has had anything to do with public affairs. He went there directly after the war, in which he made the record of a true patriot;has lived there ever since, making his home at Sinnamahoning. He has always been actively interested in local affairs, but not an office seeker. His county never before had a district nomination and when the present congressional appointment was made his neighbors put him forward as a candidate. Four years ago his county conceded, as did the others, the claim of Mr. Dresser to the second term. This year the Republicans of his county came forward and asked for the nomination on grounds that made their position strong. They offered a man of splendid personal qualificatlons, one of exceptionally clean and consistent politics and enjoying the highest personal regard of all who knew anything about him—DuBois Courier.

Captain Barclay, is a clean, intelligent business man, a Bucktail soldier of prominence and will command a large following in the whole district. While we complain of the treatment we received Capt. Barclay is in no wise to blame and the Journal pledges its best offices to secure his election to congress.—Clearfield Journal.

Capt. C. F. Barclay, of Cameron county, who was nominated at DuBois last Thursday by the Republican party for member of Congress from this disdriet, is a man whom every Republican in this district can conscientously give their most hearty support. He is a veteran of the Civil War and a man who is popular with all who know him. He has always been a staunch Republican and is an ardent admirer of President Roosevelt and his noble policies. He is a man of recognized ability and is fully capable of repreSeuting this district in Congress. Capt. Barclay is one of those men who makes friends where ever he becomes acquainted and as he will make a canvass of the entire district it is safe to assume that he will be elected by a large majority.—Smethport Miner.

As Capt. Barclay was reared in Coudersport and enlisted in this county for the war, in which he made an excellent record and won rapid promotion, it is gratifying to the Journal to note the honor bestowed upon him by the Republicans of his district.

Fully informed on all the important issues of the times, an eminently successful business man, and a man in full accord with the essential principles of Republicanism, yet independent of boss rule and intolerant of turpitude in private or public life, Mr. Barclay should make an ideal representative of the people in the national legislature. His election is practically assured from the start.—Potter Journal.

Those who are acquainted with Captain Barclay speak of him in the highest terms as a man.—Smethport Democrat.

Mr. Barclay is a man most favorably known in his own county, known by reputation hereabouts. He is a civil war veteran and won captaincy by bravery on the field at Chancellorsville, a member of the famous Bucktail company. A lifelong republican in a staunch republican district, he will go in by one of the biggest majorities ever accorded a nominee in the district.—Port Allegany Reporter.

They (Cameron) offered a man of splendid personal qualifications; one of exceptionally clean and consistent politics and enjoying the highest personal regard of all who knew anything about him; and they could further show that being without a district candidate heretofore, they would also be without hereafter, if it was not secured this year, owing to the change in the primary election law. These things had weight with the conferees against the claims of Clearfield and Centre, and were not without the effect in bringing about the result.—Bellefonte Gazette.

The Review was the only paper in the district to come anywhere near predicting the possible winner. In a March issue it presented the qualifications of Capt. Barclay and stated that he would be one of the best men the district could nominate.

In its issue of May 30, the Review came even nearer the mark. Editorially it said: "There is always some uncertainty about the selection of a congressional candidate, but we will be very much surprised if the Republican nomination doesn't hit pretty close to that stalwart veteran and clean cut citizen of Cameron county, Capt. Barclay."

It is needless to state the Review is for Barclay. In him it reconizes a man who is fitted in every way to represent the district creditably and honorably, a man whose past record has been clean and above reproach, and whose ability is unqestioned. A consistent Republican, a war veteran, a succesful business man, and respected by all with whom he mingles in a business or personal way, Capt. Barclay embodies the qualifications that will return him a winner at the November election.—Curwensville Review.

"The failure of Capt. W. C. Kress to register in Clinton county assures the nomination of Judge B. W. Green. The Clinton county primaries will be held July 28.

"A great many influential Democrats have declared their intentions of supporting Judge Green and if the Republicans will do their duty, put their shoulders to the wheel and bring out the full vote, he will be elected by a handsome majority.

"Barclay, Green, Howard and LaBar make a strong quartet and should poll nearly every vote in Cameron county. Why not make it unanimous?"—Driftwood Gazette. By all means make it unanimous and include William J. Leavitt, the bark peeler, as well as McNarney, Russell and Wykoff. And don't forget the whole Republican state ticket. Stand pat, men. That's the way to make it unanimous.

Letter From Cameron.

Editor Press:—

Kindly premit me to answer an item that appeared in the East Emporium Independent, two weeks ago, relative to tha renting of the K. G. E. hall for dances. The correspondent stated that "$4.00 is altogether too much to pay for the use of the hall, and then pay a dollar for the use of the organ. Looks very much like buying the whole outfit." In answer to the gentleman I will say that he only paid $2 00 on evening of June 30th and then wanted the organ carried down stairs for his use, when it was in use up stairs. I also wish to state that some years ago it was decided to charge $1.00 extra for organ and the ruling was not new, as he would make us believe. Whenever the members of this Lodge need the assistance of outside parties to regulate the price of the hall or organ rental we will call on them. If any parties think the rent is too high they should not rent the hall. Surely the members have never requested any one to rent it if they thought the price too high. Whenever the K. G. E., of this place. see fit to give a dance they can have it and make enough to pay all expenses and have a balance left. They have always been able to engage a caller and music—which some parties could not—and they were never obliged to use a squaking phonograph to murder music.

There are a class of people in every town, who make their living without working, and another class who try to but fail for the want of brains. As members of the K. G. E., we never had to blow our own horn when we had a dance—we left that to the people.

Wrist Cut.

Alfred Nelson, one of our enterprising carpenters, while "racking" tomatoe vines at his home, Tuesday evening, drove the bitt of his hatchet into his left wrist, making a deep cut about three inches long. Of coure he carries his arm in a sling and will not be able to work for some days.

HALL'S NOMINATION WILL BE CONTESTED.

George A. Brown, of Lock Haven, Enters the Fight for Judgeship in That District.

[Williamsport Bulletin.]

LOCK HAVEN, July, 22.—All is not harmony in the Democratic camp in Clinton county. The announcement of George A. Brown, of this city, as a candidate for President Judge of the Twenty-fifth Judicial District has caused cold shivers to the Halls. The Brownites are determined to do away with the rule of J. K. P. and Harry A. Hall in the counties of Elk and Cameron. The $30,000 berth ($3,000 per annum for ten years) had been especially reserved for Harry Alvan Hall, who is Elk county's favorite son, while J. K. P. Hall gobbled up the senatorial plum again. The Hall adherents in the county were not figuring upon any opposition to the carrying out of this program.

Brown is a member of the law firm of Brown & Stevenson, and is regarded as one of the most learned legal practitioners at the Clinton county bar. He no doubt will receive the indorsement of the Clinton county Democrats in the convention next month, and the conferees will be instructed to support him in the judiciary.

Business Men's Convention at Erie.

Arrangements for entertainment of the Retail Merchants' Association of Pennsylvania at Erie, August 21-23 are being actively prosecuted by committes from the Erie Business Men's Exchange and the Erie Retail Grocers' Association. The general committee in charge of the arrangements consists of: Chairman, Frank J. Detzel; vice chairman, J. W. Throop; A. M. Howes, T. W. Maloney, J. E. Zeiser, L. C. Schauble, Dr. G. W. Cochran, Conrad Klein, A. G. Kuhl, Otto Fobt, C. L. Weschler and W. R. Beckman. The committee expects not less than 500 delegates and visitors. After one of the business meetings it is expected that the visitors will take a ride about the bay in the power boats in use in the harbor of Pennsylvania's only lake port. An outing at Waldameer and a fish fry at Four Milk Creek are other features proposed.

The ladies committee consists of Mrs. F. J. Detzel, Mrs. J. W. Throop, Mrs. T. W. Maloney, Mrs. J. E. Zeister, Mrs. C. Bloesser and Mrs. D. M. McDonnell, who will see that the delegates and other visiting ladies are well taken care of during their stay in Erie. One of their plans is to take the ladies for an automobile ride about the city during one of the business sessions.—Trade Journal. Cameron county business men's branch have elected the following delegates: F. D. Leet and Chas. Diehl; alternates, M. C. Tulis and T. H. Norris. We learn all will attend, accompanied by their ladies. They will have a big time.

The Bachelor Girls.

Miss Helen M. Hogan, daughter of Mr. and M. T. Hogan, old and respected citizens, entertained the Bachelor Girls Club, Monday evening, at their residence, Fourth and Maple streets. The Club turned out in large numbers, there being eighteen present. The evening was delightfully enjoyed by the ladies. The event of the evening was the announcement of the hostess' engagement of Mr. Byres H. Gitchell, of Binghamton, N. Y. Congratulations, Miss Nellie.

Regular Army Soldiers.

About 250 soldier boys marched from Buffalo to Emporium, arriving here Saturday afternoon, making sixteen miles each day. They camped on the old N. P. Minard farm, north of Emporium, over night and left early Sunday morning for Driftwood, arriv-there about 2:30 p. m , leaving the next morning for Lock Haven, via Karthaus and Snow Shoe. At Lock Haven they take the cars for Mt. Gretna, where they remain until Oct. 1st. They will return via Emporium about Oct. 5th.

Sudden Death.

Harry M. Fry, who left Emporium about ten years ago and located at Raton, New Mexico, where he engaged in the furniture and undertaking business, came east June 30th to visit his parents at Port Allegany, after trying the climate of Colorado and other states, hoping to regain his rapidly failing health, caused by heart trouble, was suddenly taken worse on Saturday last and died almost instantly. His wife, whom he married in New Mexico, and three small children rccompanied him. His remains were taken to Montoursville on Sunday for burial. In addition to his wife and children, he leaves a father, Chas. Fry, and sister Katie and brother Pearson

Early Morning Blaze.

About four o'clock yesterday morning our citizens were aroused from their slumbers by the fire whistles. The fire proved to be Chas. Diehl's barn near his store, containing four horses The fire was discovered by Mrs. Diehl, when her husband hastened to the barn and liberated his four horses. The fire is a mystery and Mr. Diehl believes it to be the work of an incendiary. Damage about $100 to building and contents. A reward will be paid for evidence that will lead to the conviction of the culprits. Two men were seen running up the alley before the alarm was given.

Accident at Rathbun.

Special to the Press.

L. B. Logue, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Logue of Huntley, employed as P. R. R. brakeman, while switching some cars at Rathbun early Wednesday morning, fell from a car to the ground. His right leg came under the wheels and was cut off below the knee. He was taken to Ridgway hospital as quickly as possible where his injuries were attended to. He is 24 years of age and single. The train was in charge of Conductor Lehman and engineer Collins of Renovo. Mr. and Mrs. Logue went to Ridgway on Erie mail. The Soung man is resting as easy as can be expected at this writing.

The Effect of Caste.

"The mixture of the social classes in education," says Henry M. Whitney in the current issue of the Arena, "has been one of the greatest safeguards of the quality of culture, helping to keep it pure, practical, helpful and unselfish. "No reflective observer," continues Mr. Whitney, "can fail to see that one of the greatest hardeners and then corrupters of the human heart is the spirit of caste. A culture that is founded upon caste, that strives to protect or build up caste, is absolutely sure to do mischief—in a positive or a negative way. On the other hand, the more frequently and intimately and helpful the representatives of different social classes can meet and learn to respect each other—in the schoolroom, or on the athletic field, or anywhere else—the purer, other things being equal, will be the life and the culture of all, and the more will those who have had greater privileges think it a matter of course that they must help in any good work that is doing. They realize better that the world is not wholly of them nor for them.

"In America to-day there are two lines in which a healthful mingling of classes may especially be found. One, as we have already suggested, is the educational system. In the older days the 'select school' was the place for the child, if the family purse could afford it. But * * * our public schools are, especially in the more democratic parts of the country, used and enjoyed by all classes, and hence have been made good enough for the rich while not beyond the reach of the poor.

"Then, the friendships of school days are carried through life, crossing all artificial lines. * * * Our colleges and universities are substantially democratic; men are still valued there for their worth, the door of opportunity is still open to the deserving, however born; and the future is still so hopeful that President Harper, in one of his very last utterances, ventured to declare even that 'the university is the phophetic interpreter of democracy.' So long and so far as this continues true, our culture will be safe from decay."

Pig Iron Statistics.

According to preliminary statistics which have just been issued by the bureau of census at Washington the production of pig iron in the United States in the calendar year 1904 amounted to 16,263,625 gross tons, valued at $228,911,116, against 14,447,791 tons, valued at $206,512,755, in the census year ended May 31, 1900. The wage earners employed in 1904 numbered 35,077, who received $18,934,513 in wages, against 39,241 in 1900 who received $18,484,400 in wages. The consumption of iron ore in 1904 amounted to 30,033,862 tons, valued at $100,945,369, as compared with 25,366,894 tons in 1900, valued at $65,902,922. Of the iron ore consumed in 1904 29,203,994 tons were domestic, valued at $96,206,246, and 829,918 tons were foreign, valued at $4,739,123, while in 1900 the domestic iron ore consumed amounted to 24,612,511 tons, valued at $61,795,473, and the foreign ore to 754,383 tons, valued at $4,107,449. The daily capacity of the completed furnaces in 1904 was 77,970 tons, as compared with 54,425 tons in 1900.

As ascertained by the American Iron and Steel association the production of pig iron in the United States in 1904 was 16,497,033 gross tons.

A Chicago school of domestic science has recently turned out a group of sweet girl graduates whose diplomas certify that they are able to keep a house on ten dollars a week. While this movement may not settle the household problem, remarks the Minneapolis Journal, it is gratifying that it is being considered and that there are young women who are making the effort to restore the art of housekeeping in this country. Ten dollars a week may not be the right figure but it seems a safe starting point. No man who cannot earn ten dollars a week has much of a license to marry. And the man who can earn that amount is entitled to know in advance that if he does marry he is not being run up against a $20 wife.

BRYAN AND TARIFF

FAVORS THE TRUST ISSUE IN THE 1908 CAMPAIGN.

Regards Silver Question as "a Dead Horse"—Thinks Tariff Reduction Better Than Reciprocity as a Policy.

According to the Sun's Berlin cablegram of June 16, William Jennings Bryan was interviewed regarding the political situation in the United States:

"Mr. Bryan expressed the opinion that the next election in the United States would turn on the question of the trusts. The silver issue, he said, was a 'dead horse.'

"Being asked about the prospect of the passage of reciprocity treaties, Mr. Bryan said that he was in favor of a general reduction of duties, in which case reciprocal treaties with foreign countries would be superfluous."

The silver issue being a "dead horse," it follows of necessity that the campaign of 1908 must be fought out on the tariff question. It will be the fight of 1896 over again, excepting the elimination of free silver as a side issue. The tariff was the main issue in 1896. In 1908 it will be the only issue. Standing alone the trust issue will be of no utility to the Democratic party, for the only anti-trust laws now on the federal statute books are the product of Republican legislation. Coupled with the tariff the trust issue can be utilized again as it was in 1900 and 1904, and doubtless will be. Handled in this way, it may prove useful in winning votes for Bryan from those who feel the need of some pretext for a downward revision of the tariff. We can imagine Gov. Cummins supporting Mr. Bryan on the ground that "the tariff is the mother of trusts," along with the assured prospect of increased foreign competition as the result of Democratic tariff revision. It would be a little harder strain on Gov. Guild, but he, too, might be won over by the promise of free trade in raw materials. In the event that the Republican party should adhere to its record of guaranteeing equal protection to the producers and the users of raw materials, the temptation to "go Democratic" might prove too strong for Mr. Guild to resist.

It will be noticed that Mr. Bryan indulges in no ecstatic delusions regarding the beauties of the reciprocity system of tariff revision downward. That scheme does not appeal to him. His intelligence revolts at it. Presumably, also, his sense of fair play rejects it as an outrageous discrimination between industries equally entitled to the benefits of protection, or, as he would put it, equally able to get along without any protection. He is right in thinking that there is a better and a decenter way to insure what Gov. Cummins calls "potential competition." He would not revise protection out of the tariff in spots and chunks; he would eliminate it altogether and place all industries on a level footing of no protection.

So, as we are told in the Berlin interview of June 11, he is "in favor of a general reduction of duties, in which case reciprocal treaties with foreign countries would be superfluous." Most assuredly they would. With the tariff reduced to suit Mr. Bryan's ideas foreign producers could get into the American market without paying anything for the privilege. They could keep their own tariff intact. Moreover, our tariff having been swept away, we couldn't reduce it if we wanted to. We should be exactly in the present position of Great Britain, a convenient dumping ground of all creation.

Mr. Bryan's preference for tariff reduction and his reprobation of reciprocity dickers as "superfluous," will, of course, suit his party, and it may, as we have said, appeal strongly to tariff revisionists like Cummins and Guild, but it is going to be bad for the American Reciprocal Tariff league. How can the enterprising organization keep on raising money with which to exploit its scheme of foreign trade advantages when the ground shall have been dug from under its feet by an all-round tariff abolition that leaves no basis for special dickers? Flour is no more indispensable to the baker's dough than protection duties are to the dough of the Reciprocal Tariff league.

But Mr. Bryan's reappearance upon the scene as the accepted candidate of his party presents a pleasing phase in the political situation and outlook. It serves to clear things up and straighten things out. It will bring the armies squarely face to face upon a single issue: Protection or free trade. It will put courage into the party of free trade and backbone into the party of protection. Both parties need bracing up.

Eggs and Pence.

To have things cheaper is the economical ideal of free traders and tariff reformers. They do have things cheaper when they have their way with the tariff. This result is reached by a lessening of demand without a corresponding curtailment of the supply. Poorly-paid people are poor buyers. When eggs were selling at tuppence a dozen in the Scotch Highlands, Dr. Johnson observed that the trouble was not too many eggs, but too few pence. It is better to have eggs selling at five times tuppence and also have pence enough to buy and pay for them. That is what protection aims at and accomplishes.

FAULTS OF THE PRESIDENT

Veteran Republican Editor Points Out Many Blots on the Political Record of Theodore Roosevelt.

The Evening Star, of Washington, D. C., edited by the venerable Crosby S. Noyes, has for nearly half a century been the leading Republican newspaper south of Philadelphia; and its editor has been on terms of intimate friendship with every Republican president since Lincoln's time. He knows better, perhaps, than any other living man, the opinions prevalent in the highest circles of official society in Washington. His editorial utterances are therefore of the first importance. In the Star of June 25 Mr. Noyes in his leading editorial, speaking of Roosevelt, says: "He does not hesitate to exert all his strenuous energies in the execution of anything he has willed, when he is wholly in the wrong. His oldest, best and most sincere friends have noted with dismay his rapidly growing disposition to exercise autocratic power on all occasions, big or little, right or wrong."

By close observation Mr. Noyes has discovered that Mr. Roosevelt has less respect for decent people than for many questionable characters, and cites the Barnes appointment in support of this contention. Barnes had become odious to the people of Washington by reason of his brutal treatment of Mrs. Minor Morris; and the Star says, in "contemptuous defiance of outraged public opinion he (Roosevelt) appointed the person directly responsible for the brutal outrage to one of the best paying offices in his gift."

The Star also charges that a disgraceful compact was made between the president and Penrose, the successor of Matt Quay as boss of the Pennsylvania Republican machine, by the terms of which Roosevelt is to help Penrose and Durham to reestablish their sway in that state, in return for the aid rendered by Penrose in securing the confirmation of Barnes as postmaster at Washington.

These attacks upon President Roosevelt by the leading Republican organ at the national capital are unprecedented. The Star would make good reading in Pennsylvania, Iowa and Ohio this year. Nobody can charge it with being a Bryan organ or a yellow journal. It is after the straightest order of its sect a Pharisee.

AT EXPENSE OF FARMERS.

Removal of Duty on Hides Would Aid the Manufacturer, But Not the Agriculturist.

One of the assaults upon the Republican tariff law which restored prosperity to this country has been led by those who want free hides for the benefit of the manufacturers. Strange as it may seem there is an element in Iowa, great agricultural state that she is, that has joined in this demand, notwithstanding the fact that hides are the farmer's product and one of the comparatively few things upon which he gets the direct benefit of protection. The plea has been that the tariff made hides so high that it was a hardship on the manufacturer and that the latter would take it out of the consumer. Frank W. Mahin, an Iowa man who is consul at Nottingham, England, says that English shoe manufacturers have raised their prices because they have been compelled to pay an advance of 40 or 50 per cent. on leather the past year. It is hardly necessary to say that Mr. Mahin is telling the truth, as he is a reputable and reliable man, and besides misrepresentation in a matter of this kind would cost him his position. Neither is it necessary to call attention to the fact that there is no such thing as a duty on hides in England. The situation in England, taken in connection with the fact that in this country the advance in the price of hides is far greater than the tariff duty, seems to show that the increase is worldwide and is caused by the fact that the supply was not equal to the demand. The remedy which the manufacturers proposed to apply would be at the expense of the farmers.—Creston (Ia.) Advertiser.

Democratic Measure Defeated.

Even that high Republican authority, the New York Tribune, is troubled over the failure of congress to pass the Tillman bill prohibiting corporations from contributing money in connection with elections. While Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Cannon could have pushed this bill through the house in less than an hour, they refused to do so. The Tribune warned these gentlemen against resisting the passage of the bill, but in vain. On June 27 it said: "This is a reform which public opinion demands, and there is no good reason why it should not have its first trial in the approaching congressional campaign. Delay in legislating against corrupt practices will only suggest evasion, and such a charge will prove embarrassing to meet in the present temper of the voters."

Let it not be forgotten that the measure failed because it was obstructed by President Roosevelt and Speaker Cannon. And when the president goes out on his poaching tours at the expense of Democrats as well as Republicans, ask him why he stifled the corrupt practices bill; why he keeps Cortelyou in his cabinet; why he doesn't apologize to Judge Parker for the falsehood he told about Parker in 1904; and why he doesn't make Cortelyou and Bliss pay back to the policy holders of the life insurance companies the money filched from them in the last campaign. Teddy is a fine preacher; but "words are good when backed up by deeds, and only so."

THE COURTS

Should Not Allow Technical Appeals in CRIMINAL CASES.

While the Number of Murderers is Increasing Procedure Against Them is Becoming a Farce.

Ithaca, N. Y.—Andrew D. White, ex-president of Cornell university, in an address before the Cornell summer school Friday night, declared the time has come when technical appeals in criminal cases should no longer be allowed by the courts. Referring to the situation in New York City and speaking of District Attorney Jerome, Dr. White said:

"On him more than any other man thinking people throughout the state and nation are pinning their hopes that sundry cases of high crime now attracting notice may not become a lasting disgrace to the New York courts and American justice.

"While the number of murderers is rapidly increasing, procedure against them is becoming more and more ineffective, and, in the light of sundry recent cases in New York and elsewhere, is seen to be a farce.

"One of the worst results of these cases is the growing opinion among the people at large that men with money can so delay justice by every sort of chicanery that there is virtual immunity from punishment from the highest crimes. I favor preventing appeals based on mere technical matters and upon errors of trial judges in trifling matters of procedure and the like which have really nothing to do with the question of guilt or innocence."

TRADE REVIEW.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Conditions of Business as Exceptionally Good.

New York.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Exceptionally encouraging reports for this time of the year are received regarding trade, industry and transportation. The best news of the past week comes from agricultural sections, where progress is fully maintained, harvesting of winter wheat promising a larger yield than expected, and of good quality, while corn and oats exceed anticipations, and hay alone of the leading crops threatens to be short. As results on the farms become assured there is a growth of confidence that brings out large orders for fall and winter delivery of all staples.

More textile mills have voluntarily advanced wages 5 per cent., to take effect after this month, and the only important labor trouble that threatens is a local building complication that will be averted if conservative counsel prevails.

Official returns show that foreign commerce in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, far eclipse all records, both as to exports and imports.

Restoration of foundry pig to $14 is probaly the best development of the week in the iron and steel industry.

Failures this week numbered 192 in the United States, against 193 last year, and 22 in Canada, compared with 23 a year ago.

SIGNED TREATY.

Peace Has Been Concluded Between Central American Belligerants.

Washington, D. C.—The state department Friday night was advised of the signing of the treaty of peace by the representatives of the belligerent republics aboard the Marblehead. A cablegram was received from Mr. Merry, the American minister to Salvador, Costa Rica and Nicaragua, announcing that a treaty of peace had been signed on board the American warship.

In his message Mr. Merry referred to a joint message sent by himself and Mr. Combs, the American minister to Guatemala and Honduras, which message had not reached the state department Friday night. This message, it is believed, gives details as to the conclusions reached and is awaited anxiously by the officials here.

Fell Down Elevator Shaft.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Ella Farmarie, 18 years old, employed in the dressmaking department of the dry goods establishment of McCreery & Co., of this city, was instantly killed Friday by falling down the elevator shaft from the tenth floor of the building. Miss Farmerie walked to the door of the elevator which had been left open. The car was on the lowest floor and in some manner which has not been explained the young woman stepped into the shaft landing on the roof of the cage.

Kicked Into River and Drowned.

Chicago, Ill.—Albert Wegel was beaten into insensibility by Adolph Adams Friday and then kicked into the river during a quarrel. Before help could reach him he drowned. Adams was arrested after he had made a hard fight against three policemen.

Will Buy Railroads.

Tokio, Japan.—The Japanese government has decided to purchase six railways by December 1, paying for them $125,000,000 in 5 per cent. bonds, redeemable in five years.

PANIC AMONG PEOPLE.

Excursion Boats Collide in New York Harbor—1,500 Lives in Peril, but There Were No Fatalities.

New York.—Two crowded excursion steamers were in collision Thursday night in New York harbor off Staten Island, imperilling the lives of 1,500 persons, but neither in the crash itself nor in the wild panic which followed was anyone seriously injured. The vessels were the Perseus, bound for Coney Island with 500 passengers on board, and the Thomas Patten, from Long Beach to New York, carrying 1,000 passengers. The shrill whistles of the colliding steamers soon brought assistance from boats in the bay and the frightened passengers were transferred as quickly as possible and brought to this city. The Perseus and the Patten interlocked and neither sank.

The lower harbor was covered with a dense fog at the time of the collision and the two vessels were running at reduced speed.

When directly off St. George, S. I., the Patten crashed with terrific force into the port side of the Perseus, smashing the paddle wheel and box and tearing away much of the joiner work. The Patten's bow and upper foredecks were badly damaged. The impact was so great that the vessels remained fast together. No effort was made by the Patten to break away, however, for it was felt that safety from sinking lay in vessels remaining interlocked.

When the Patten loomed suddenly out of the fog bank and it was seen that a collision was unavoidable, the passengers on the two vessels became frantic with fear. Just before the crash one man on the Perseus jumped overboard. He was quickly rescued.

A hasty examination indicated that neither boat was in immediate danger of going down and the excursionists were assured of this fact. Meantime the whistles were calling assistance, and while the passengers were rushing about the decks seeking relatives and friends, the excursion boat Commodore and a Staten Island municipal ferry boat ranged alongside. The transfer of passengers was quickly made and all were brought to the city.

During the panic many women fainted and some were bruised, but not seriously.

DAMAGE IS SLIGHT.

Reports Regarding Earthquake in New Mexico Greatly Exaggerated.

Santa Fe, N. M.—Mayor Bursum, of Socorro, Thursday issued the following signed statement:

"The reports regarding the earthquake at Socorro have been exaggerated, the damage to date being limited to the falling and toppling over of loose chimneys and shaking of some of the walls of buildings not of a substantial character.

"The actual damage all round is very slight, although there is some uneasiness on account of the frequency of the shocks which are, however, becoming lighter each time, indicating that the disturbance is subsiding. Since Wednesday there have been four slight shocks which were barely perceptible and would have passed unnoticed at other times. People who have left Socorro on account of the earthquake have done so principally on account of their children or female relatives. There has been no cloudburst or flood, as reported in dispatches, and not the slightest injury to any person."

Mayor Bursom also denied reports that the Santa Fe railroad tracks are blockaded by falling boulders. All trains through Socorro arrived on time Thursday.

MINE EXPLOSION.

Causes Death of Five Miners and Injured Two Others so Badly They Will Die.

Bluefield, W. Va.—As a result of an Explosion in the Dixon mine at Hughey, in the east end of the Tug river field, Thursday night, Wallace Mitchell and four miners, Ernest Jones, Palmer Harris, Robert Harris and John Gilmore are dead and Bill Crouse and Langdon Whiteside will die from burns and shocks.

The men were going on duty for the night and had started down the shaft in a bucket. They had gone about half way down when the explosion occurred, blowing the first five men named out of the bucket and down to the bottom of the shaft, where they where later picked up Their bodies were crushed almost to a pulp. The explosion was caused by the men having a gasoline light in the bucket while descending, the light igniting an accumulation of gas.

Eight-Hour Law to be Enforced.

Washington, D. C.—Action of the greatest importance to labor circles is contemplated in a direction given by the president to officers in charge of public works, at the instance of Secretary Taft. This is to employ the government's own officers to detect and punish violations of the law of 1892 providing that except in case of an emergency work upon government buildings, ships and other properties shall be limited to eight hours each day for each workman.

Shows an Increase.

Washington, D. C.—According to a statement issued by the geological survey Thursday the value of the products of clay in the United States in 1905 was $149,697,188, as against an output valued at $131,023,248 in 1904. Of the total value in 1905, $121,778,294 was for brick and tile and $27,918,894 for pottery.

Jockeys Injured.

Buffalo, N. Y. — Five jockeys were injured at the Fort Erie race track Thursday by their horses going down in a bunch.

UTTERLY WORN OUT.

Vitality Sapped by Years of Suffering with Kidney Trouble.

Capt. J. W. Hogun, former postmaster of Indianola, now living at Austin, Texas, writes: "I was afflicted for years with pains across the loins and in the hips and shoulders. I had headache also and neuralgia. My right eye, from pain, was of little use to me for years. The constant flow or urine kept my system depleted, causing nervous chills and night sweats. After trying seven different climates and using all kinds of medicines, I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy has cured me. I am as well today as I was twenty years ago, and my eyesight is perfect."

Another Australian Experiment.

Suitable farming land is provided by the Australian government for groups of men and their families that will ultimately form village settlements, but they are not to be cooperative—each settler will stand or fall on his own merits. Government overseers will guide and instruct the settlers for two years, and the house erected for his use can be used as a public hall or school. Plain rations, implements, a small stock of cows, poultry, etc.; roofing material, water tanks, etc., will be supplied for the first year. This will be charged as a loan and must be eventually refunded to the state.

OUTDOOR LIFE

Will Not Offset the Ill Effects of Coffee When One Cannot Digest It.

A farmer says:

"It was not from liquor or tobacco that for ten years or more I suffered from dyspepsia and stomach trouble, they were caused by the use of coffee until I got so bad I had to give up coffee entirely and almost give up eating. There were times when I could eat only boiled milk and bread and when I went to the field to work I had to take some bread and butter along to give me strength.

"I doctored with doctors and took almost everything I could get for my stomach in the way of medicine, but if I got any better it only lasted a little while until I was almost a walking skeleton.

"One day I read an ad for Postum and told my wife I would try it, and as to the following facts I will make affidavit before any judge:

"I quit coffee entirely and used Postum in its place. I have regained my health entirely and can eat anything that is cooked to eat. I have increased in weight until now I weigh more than I ever did; I have not taken any medicine for my stomach since I began using Postum. Why, I believe Postum will almost digest an iron wedge.

"My family would stick to coffee at first, but they saw the effects it had on me, and when they were feeling bad they began to use Postum, one at a time, until now we all use Postum." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ten days' trial of Postum in place of coffee proves the truth, an easy and pleasant way. "There's a reason."

WILES of the PICKPOCKET

Chicago.—Keeping pace with the ingenuity of the criminal class is one of the most difficult duties of the modern police of large cities. There is no class so up to date in its business methods as the criminal class. Successful businesses of a legitimate character must change their systems constantly because of competition. Between the professional criminal and the professional criminal catcher, aided and abetted by all good citizens, there is a constant war of wits. That the criminal so often gets the better of his opponent, hired for his sagacity and paid to catch the thief, the hold-up and the burglar, is sufficient indication of the average superiority of wit possessed by the professional criminal when compared to the criminal catcher. One quick-witted thief can often keep 100 famous sleuths busy without results for weeks, months and years, and be plying his particular calling all the time. The old adage that the same amount of ingenuity expended by the average criminal in earning a dishonest living would, if applied, be the means of his achieving unlimited success in legitimate business channels is exemplified in criminal records every day in the year.

There is a vast difference between the methods of the old and the new pickpockets. Criminologists of world-wide reputation tell us that there is a new school of pickpockets arising which is so far more astute than the pioneers of that class that the old timers, skillful though they may have been, are themselves occasionally victimized by the "youngsters." There are probably hundreds of young fellows in Chicago, ranging from 15 to 20 years of age, who are so far ahead of the older pickpockets that it is impossible without an intimate knowledge of their operations to form a fair idea of their skill. Formerly when a pickpocket took his victim's watch he was satisfied to twist it from the ring that held it to its chain. This method is quite obsolete now. The younger element in the light-fingered profession consider themselves disgraced and unfit for honors unless they can take watch, chain, charm and whatever may be attached to the other end of the chain in the opposite waistcoat pocket. They consider the ancient system coarse work.

An inspector, whose intimate acquaintance with criminals dates over a period of several years, declares that he has never yet had personal experience with alleged schools for the education of thieves along the plan originated by the late Mr. Fagin, of the Dickens' period. But whether there are Fagin schools for pickpockets or not, it is a positive fact that in the larger cities of the country the pickpocket problem at this period is a very serious one, and far more difficult to deal with than was the case several years ago. In those days the professionals were not nearly so numerous as they are now, and nine times in ten when the detectives became acquainted with the details of a job in the pocket-picking line they could tell offhand who did it, and all they had to do was to look up the man or woman whose peculiar kind of handiwork was shown in the crime. In those days, too, there were less people in Chicago who bought stolen goods, and it was a comparatively easy matter to trace anything lost through the pocket-picking process.

Formerly, too, there were a few concert halls, principally in the "levee" districts, where the thieves used to congregate, and the police often found the criminals when they went after them in these places, working on the theory that "where the molasses is there you will find the flies." Thieves who acquire their money quickly and occasionally in considerable sums almost invariably make a bee line for some place where their female acquaintances congregate. The pickpocket, the burglar and the hold-up man are usually merely agents for some feminine charmer, or charmers, and where the criminal escapes the police and the just results of his thefts he in turn becomes the victim of the women who infest concert halls and similar resorts.

There was a time when the English were considered the most expert in this branch of crime, but that is no longer an existing condition. A crowd of English crooks came to this country a couple of years ago. They got no further than New York, which has the system of apprehending professional crooks boiled down to a fine art. This party included four of the wiliest and most skillful pickpockets of London and the continent. The New York police caught them all, one after another, so rapidly that they were dazed. The same kind of performance occurred when a party of German thieves landed in Philadelphia. The thieves were arrested very quickly after they began operations, one of them being caught with seven watches on his person.

In the cases of most thieves who ply their calling between New York and Chicago and other of the larger cities the process of making the detectives acquainted with the criminals makes it difficult for any well-known crook to be in the city any length of time without being recognized and watched. For instance, at the Harrison Street station or the old central detail, now housed at the Desplaines Street station, the criminals and suspicious persons picked up during the night are held until morning for scrutiny and possible identification by the detectives, a simple process that has for some time been in vogue.

"John Smith," for example, the inspector, lieutenant or sergeant in charge of the operations, would call out in gruff, imperious tones: "Hold up your right hand." The individual addressed on one such instance recently, a dapper, well-dressed young man with a narrow face and bright, ratty eyes, had raised his hand high in the air. Then the inspector had repeated: "John Smith, pickpocket, works the surface cars and bridge entrances."

To Smith was thereupon addressed an inquiry as to who was his partner. He pointed out another youthful, but rather more roughly dressed fellow in the crowd. This "dipper" was ordered over to stand beside Smith. By this process the detectives were enabled not alone to fasten in their memories the faces of the two offenders individually, but to associate them with each other, and in this manner simplify the task of picking them out in future.

Everybody brought into this chamber of sifting is photographed and measured by the Bertillon system, after which all hands are taken to court to be turned loose by the various police magistrates, many of whom seem disinclined to hold prisoners of this type on a vagrancy charge or to remand them for further examination with a view to adding to their discomforts, and thus encouraging them to seek fresh fields and pastures new. It is the aim and purpose of all police orders that this class be apprehended whenever and wherever they turn up.

Some women engage in the work of picking pockets, but that sex is not so commonly found nowadays as formerly. It used to be that such women, when they were not engaged in shoplifting, plied their vocation on the street cars and other crowded places, usually with a male companion. That was straight pickpocketing. The business is now done after dark, more often late at night, by women who accost drunken men or unsophisticated strangers and back them up against a fence or lead them into a vacant hall, ostensibly for conversational purposes. Then they start in to fondle their victims, and it is all over.

Some of these women are so very clever that when they have succeeded in removing a man's bank roll they manage to replace it with a bundle of blank paper so familiar in dimensions to the money they have abstracted that he cannot tell the difference by touching the spurious roll from the outside. There are both white and black women in this branch of thieving, and they are a busy lot. When one of them has landed the prize she has been after she makes a sign—usually in the form of a cough—and a man or another woman steps smartly up and "splits her out" from her prey.

A Pinkerton man, who has spent most of his life in finding out the habits of criminals, says of the new generation of pickpockets: "In Chicago there are several classes of pickpockets, the newest of which, perhaps, is made up of the boys who operate in State street and in the theater districts when audiences are leaving the various playhouses. These are ostensibly newsboys, crying the hardy serial with flaunting red headlines. Their scheme is to push the papers up into the faces of pedestrians, and, while under cover of the ruse, they 'get off the fronts' of the dupes, who either stop to buy the paper or who cannot escape the onslaughts of the persistent youngsters.

"For instance ,a well-dressed man with a woman companion may be emerging from a theater slowly fastening his coat. A boy rushes up to him and pesters him with a paper, so that he becomes irritable and angry. He growls at the lad, but that does not bother his tormentor. Having centered the attention of the gentleman upon the newspaper in his left hand, the boy slips his right hand underneath the 'extra' and in an instant is in possession of a watch and sometimes a chain. These youngsters go mainly for fobs, which are more easily acquired than the other sort, but they are sufficiently skillful to take watch, chain and all when it is convenient or necessary.

"This line of thieving has been developed mainly during the last 18 months, and it has been carried to such a pass that the public ought to be warned to keep a sharp vigil when unduly pressed to buy a paper.

"In the street cars there are various methods of working, and it is seldom that less than three or four operators ply their trade together. If there is a mob of four only one of them engages in the actual work of depriving the 'mark' of his or her valuables. The thief is called the 'tool,' and the others are known as 'stall.' Quite often a woman is employed as a 'stall.' By some secret code of signals the 'mark' is decided upon and the woman picks a fuss with him, either accusing him of trying to flirt with her or exclaiming that he has clumsily stepped upon her foot. Then, when he is busy with his expostulations, the others crowd about him menacingly and the 'tool' takes his money and jewelry.

"The best pickpockets do not work as a rule in what are known as the rush hours on the elevated and surface lines—the hours, that is to say, when workingmen, clerks and saleswomen are going to and from their homes. It is the theater crowd or the crowd going to the races that attracts the pickpockets, who are after the people that have money, not those of slender incomes."

Pickpockets, like other criminals, rarely have any money when they come to lay down the cares of a busy life. The only noteworthy instance to the contrary was that of a famous pickpocket known as "Gold Tooth Kid," who died five years ago, and whose efforts for the "relief" of humanity were largely confined to New York, although he had graced Chicago and other large cities with his presence at various periods of his career. But in addition to picking pockets he had worked with the "yeggs" or "hobo" thieves and was a versatile criminal. He was an Englishman by birth, and of thrifty habits, which is a condition not at all usual.

FOR TRADE.

Japan Undertakes Great Experiment IN COMMERCE.

Development of Manchurian Interests to Be Made Under Control of Japanese Government.

Washington, D. C.—According to advices received by the bureau of maufacturers, the Japanese government has undertaken one of the greatest experiments in the world's history, which indicates a clear purpose to protect, supervise, develop and nationalize all Japanese industries.

The question of Manchurian development has received careful attention, and it is now proposed that a company should be formed by the government and private capitalists jointly for working and developing the railways, mines and forests in Manchuria. If successful along the lines Japan is now working, it is stated that the individuals and corporations of America that are striving for the trade of the Orient will discover that they are not competing for this trade against individuals and corporations of Japan, but that they are in commercial conflict with the Japanese nation itself.

A great guild of cotton manufacturing companies of Japan has been formed to capture the Manchurian trade. In connection with the enterprise the government has decided to make the loan through the Yokohama Specie bank, without limitations as to the amount not only on cotton textiles, but on matches, cement, beer, marine products, lumber and other goods to be imported to Manchuria at the rate of 4½ per cent. per annum.

The government will pursue a similar policy with regard to Korea where the First bank is to act as the Specie bank acts in Manchuria.

TRAGEDY IN A MAD HOUSE.

A Patient Kills Two of the Inmates and Mortally Wounds a Keeper.

Scranton, Pa.—A terrible tragedy was perpetrated in the Hillside home Wednesday, when one of the insane patients killed two of the inmates and mortally wounded one of the keepers.

The murderer is Ignatz Krewzyp, a deaf and dumb Pole, who was not regarded as dangerous. He was given work in one of the wards with two women, also insane patients, Mrs. Ann Golden and Mrs. Ann Van Valen. The three were moving some cots under the direction of Keeper Richard Davies, who left the room momentarily. Seizing the opportunity afforded by the keeper's absence the insane an ran into the doctor's office and there picked up an amputating knife with a blade about ten inches long and ran upstairs to the upper floor.

Keeper Davies ran after Krewzyp and the latter turned upon him and buried the knife in the keeper's chest. He then attacked the two women. He stabbed Mrs. Golden in the chest, the knife piercing her body twice, and then stabbed Mrs. Van Valen once. Both women died soon afterward.

Mrs. Golden lived in Elkdale and has been an inmate of the home for nine years. Mrs. Van Valen was a resident of Scranton and had been in the home for four years.

Krewzyp is 35 years of age and was one of the most powerful inmates of the institution. After the deed was committed he jabbered in a vehement manner and no sign or motion could be obtained from him. He is now a raving maniac.

Burned to Death.

Boise, Idaho.—Charles A. Justus and three children of his sister, Mrs. Samuel Moudy, were burned to death at the family homestead Wednesday night. The parents of the children were in a hospital at Boise, where Mrs. Moudy had recently submitted to an operation. Justus remained with her seven children. When the house was found to be on fire the four older children escaped. Justus went into the burning building to rescue the younger ones. Soon afterward a shot was heard and neither Justus nor the children were afterwards seen alive. Mr. Moudy says that a loaded rifle was kept hanging under the stairway, and he believes that the heat caused the gun to explode and kill Justus while he was on the way to rescue the children.

Signed the Scale.

Columbus, O. — The joint scale committee representing the Hocking valley operators and miners met here Wednesday and settled two minor points remaining in dispute and signed the revised scale, which will be in effect for two years.

Banker Suicides.

Des Moines, Ia.—Martin Flynn, president of the People's Savings bank, of this city, shot himself in the brain at a downtown drug store Wednesday, dying almost instantly. Ill health is the supposed cause for the act. Mr. Flynn was prominent throughout west as a cattle breeder.

STOMACH WORMS IN SHEEP

Ailment Which Is Best Treated by a Change of Pasturage—Other Remedies.

The bane of the sheep grower in the humid sections is what is called the twisted stomach worm, the Strongulus Contortus, a small, fine, thread-like worm found twisted together in the stomach of the sheep, red when filled with blood, white when dead and empty. So far as we know it is to be found in all flocks in the humid and perhaps in the semi-arid sections of the United States.

It seldom does any appreciable injury to the older sheep, nor to vigorous early lambs. It is frequently fatal to lambs out of condition, and especially to lambs that come as late as the first of June. It is taken into the system from pasture infected from the droppings of older sheep or lambs that are infested.

Hence the one important thing in fighting this disease is change of pasture. If sheep are kept for a number of years on a blue grass pasture, and especially if they are watered from sloughs in the pasture, they are almost certain to have a severe attack of stomach worms. There are just two preventives. One is not to allow sheep on the same pasture more than two years in succession. The other is to have your lambs come as early as they can be cared for, and then feed them some grain and keep them growing vigorously from start to finish. If they can be sold fat in June at the prices usually current, sell them. Five dollars is just as good pay for a lamb in June as it is for a lamb in December and January which has eaten a great deal more feed and incurred greater risk. If weaned they should be put on a fresh pasture. Old pastures sooner or later become sheep sick.

As to remedies, Prof. R. A. Craig, veterinarian of Purdue experiment station, upon the authority of Dr. Law, recommends the following:

"Arsenious acid, one dram; sulphate of iron, five drams; powdered nux vomica, two drams; powdered areca, two ounces; common salt, four ounces. This mixture is sufficient for 30 sheep and can be fed with ground feed once or twice a week. In case the symptoms are already manifested, it should be fed once a day for two or three weeks. In giving this remedy in this feed the necessary precautions should be taken or each animal may not get the proper dose."

To which he also adds:

"Turpentine is largely used in the treatment of stomach worms. It is administered as an emulsion with milk (one part turpentine to 16 parts of milk). The emulsion should be well shaken before drenching the animal. The dose is two ounces for a lamb and four ounces for an adult, and to be effective should be repeated daily for two or three days."

In handling sheep an ounce of prevention is worth a good many pounds of cure, and the one maxim "change of pasture is good for sheep" is worth about all the medicines that were ever poured down the sheep's throat., says Wallace's Farmer. We remember once looking through an old copy of one of the earliest of the agricultural papers. It went into the subject of diseases of sheep very thoroughly, dealing with almost every disease we ever heard of and some we never heard of. The remedies described were purely vegetable, decoctions from various herbs such as were used by our wise grandmothers in treating the ailments of their children and grandchildren; but we noticed that at the end of each prescription there was this sage advice: Change the pasture.

THE LIVE STOCK.

No blemished horse should be used as a breeder.

Good horses cannot be produced from inferior parents.

Hogs grown under cleanly conditions make clean, wholesome pork.

Horse breeding should receive more attention by the general farmer.

Pig pork is juicer, tenderer, healthier, costs less and sells better than hog pork.

Cleanliness is as necessary for the health and well being of hogs as for other animals.

Oats fed to hogs will produce bone and muscle and will prevent sows from getting too fat.

That Emery Letter.

The Wanamaker interests through the Philadelphia North American scolds its nominee for writing the Likins letter. It said on Saturday:

"Mr. Emery's letter is much too long, it rambles where it should have been terse, and it says many things which had better have been left unsaid for the advantage of the writer and the cause.

Mr. Emery will do well, we think, to accept for himself in the future, Quay's advice to Beaver."

To Republicans.

We are anxious to have every Republican in close touch, and work in harmony with the Republican National Congressional Committ in favor of the election of a Republican Congress.

The Congressional campaign must be based on the administrative and legislative record of the party, and, that being so, Theodore Roosevelt's personality must be a central figure and his achievements a central thought in the campaign.

We desire to maintain the work of this campaign with popular subscriptions of One Dollar each from Republicans. To each subscriber we will will send the Republican National Campaign Text Book and all documents issued by the Committee.

Denver's First Stageconch.

On the 17th of May, 1859, Denver turned out to welcome the first through coach of what was destined to grow into the "Overland Mail," an enterprise which for sheer American pluck and daring must be forever linked with the fame of the "Pony Express." Red shirts drifted to the outskirts of the hamlet and dotted the hills around. Hard faced bartenders made ready for the "hottest night that ever tore the camp loose." The artillery of holster and saddle boot was unlimbered for an ecstatic fusillade. There was lively betting in dust and nuggets that the first through stage had been gathered in by Indians, with takers as eager to stake their faith that the scalps of driver and guard would come through intact. At length a swirl of dust showed far down the trail. It grew into a yellow cloud that crept toward the eager hamlet. Then six mules, stretched out on the gallop, emerged from this curtain, and behind them was the lumbering, swaying stage, come safely through on time, and Denver was in touch with the world where men wore white shirts and lived in real houses. The cheers that roared a welcome to this heroic enterprise were echoed in every western town which hoped and longed for a link of its own with the home country, "way back east."—Outing Magazine.

The Polite Burman.

In the cities of Burma, where the natives have been long in contact with Europeans, says the author of "Burma, Painted and Described," they have lost some of their traditional politeness, but in the country districts old school courtesy is still the custom. An English gentleman who had bought a new pony was trying him out on a Burman road when the animal bolted and ran at top speed down a narrow road. In the way ahead was a native cart, in which was a family party out holiday making. The pony dashed into the back of the cart, threw his rider into the midst of the merrymakers and severely injured the Burman who was driving. Before the Englishman had an opportunity to explain his unexpected onslaught the Burman picked himself up and bowed low. "My lord, my lord," he said apologetically, "the cart should not have been there."

Inherited Memories.

A writer in the Nineteenth Century tells a strange story of "inherited memories." The ruins of an ancient Roman fortress rise from the grounds of a Mr. Phillips. A clergyman called upon the owner one day and asked to see the ruins. "He told me he had a distinct recollection of living there and that he held some office of a priestly nature in the days of the Roman occupation," said Mr. Phillips. "One fact struck me as significant. He insisted on examining a ruined tower which had bodily overturned. 'There used to be a socket in the top of it,' he went on, 'in which we used to plant a mast, and archers used to be hauled to the top in a basket protected with leather, from which they picked off the leaders among the ancient Gorlestonians.' We found the socket he had indicated."

When Paris Was Dirty.

It takes the labors of 4,000 to keep the city of Paris clean today, but in times past that capital did not care so much about the matter and was not always pleasing to look upon. In 1348 King John of France made the request that Parisians should not allow their pigs to roam the streets. Charles VI. (1368-1422) complained that the practice of throwing rubbish into the Seine made it a "great horror and an abomination to look upon." Until the seventeenth century everybody who could went about Paris on horseback in order to avoid contact with the filth of the streets. Various ordinances were made to compel the people to sweep the road before their own doors, but it was not until 1791 that the dust cart became an institution.

A Lullaby.

Magistrate—You are accused of attempting to hold a pedestrian up at 2 o'clock this morning. What have you to say in your own behalf?

Prisoner—I am not guilty, your honor. I can prove a lullaby.

Magistrate—You mean an alibi.

Prisoner—Well, call it what you like, but my wife will swear that I was walking the floor with the baby at the hour mentioned in the charge.—Chicago News.

Ibsen on Friendship.

Friends are a costly luxury, and when one invests one's capital in a mission in life one cannot afford to have friends. The expensiveness of friendship does not lie in what one does for one's friends, but in what one, out of regard for them, leaves undone. This means the crushing of many an intellectual germ.—From a Letter to George Brandes.

Just Like Him.

Arthur—You think I don't love you, darling? Why, I would die for you. Arethusa—Yes, and it would be just like you to do it so that your funeral would come on a day when I had to give up a real nice engagement to attend it. Oh, you men are so selfish!

Sad.

First Baby—You look sad.

Second Baby—I am. I feel keenly the responsibility of having parents who cannot afford to have me.—Smart Set.

Seized His Chance.

Miss Prim—In Siberia do they have reindeer? Mr. Nervey—Yes, but often-er they have snow, darling.—Cleveland Leader.

He who does not improve today will grow worse tomorrow.—German Proverb.

Earthquakes.

Among the many strange relationships which earthquakes hold to various natural phenomena there is possibly one between the times of their occurrence and of irregularities in the revolution of the world. For many years it has been observed that there are slight but irregular changes in latitude, or, in other words, the axis of our earth does not always point in the same direction. The pole wanders about in a mean position, sometimes in a path that is nearly circular, while at others it appears to be exceedingly irregular and even retrograde. The world top is not spinning truly, but it slightly wabbles. When the change in direction of its axis is sharp large earthquakes have been frequent. If a swiftly moving body is, so to speak, compelled to turn a corner, that it should be subjected to strains which might result in yielding is easily conceivable. Regarded from this point of view, the times at which strata in seismic strain give way are to some extent governed by erratic movements in the rotation of our sphere. The earthquake and the wabble may, however, be due to a common cause, and the question therefore is one which requires closer examination.—John Milne in National Review.

A Good Horse's Color.

A good horse cannot be a bad color, it is said. It is certain that Derby winners are not drawn from certain colors. Has a gray ever won the race, or a dun or a skewbald or a piebald? Has there ever been a thoroughbred of the latter type? Quite black thoroughbreds are rare, white still more so, gray uncommon even among the less exalted of public performers. The "Stud Book" would not bear out these statements where colors uncommon on the race course are described. The explanation is, of course, that the horse is there described as he appeared as a foal. An owner of a bay thoroughbred looked up the "Stud Book" to find his purchase pictured as a chestnut and complained to the men of whom he had bought the horse. The former owner assured him that the description was correct at the time it was entered. Other owners, less certain as to what color may appear when the first coat has been cast, have before now made such singular entries as "gray, roan or chestnut."—St. James' Gazette.

The Porcupine's Quills.

The spines are very loosely attached to the porcupine, and they are very sharp—as sharp as a needle at the outer end. At almost the slightest touch they penetrate the nose of a dog or the clothing or flesh of a person touching the porcupine and stick there, coming away from the animal without any pull being required. The facility in catching hold with one end and letting go with the other has sometimes caused people to think that the spines had been thrown at them. The outer end of the spines, for some distance down, is covered with small barbs. These barbs cause a spine once imbedded in a living animal to keep working farther in with every movement of the muscles, so that it is not a pleasant thing to get stuck full of them.

A Sad Picture.

At Varzin once, after sitting for some time sunk in profound reflection, Bismarck lamented that he had derived but small pleasure or satisfaction from his political activity, but, on the other hand, much vexation, anxiety and trouble. He had, he said, made no one happy by it, neither himself, his family nor any one else, "but probably," he continued, "many unhappy. Had it not been for me there would have been three great wars the less, the lives of 80,000 men would not have been sacrificed and many parents, brothers, sisters and widows would not now be mourners."—"Bismarck's Table Talk."

Unique Rainmaking.

One of the oldest rainmaking plants is the invention of a native of one of the Indian provinces. By means of a rocket he sends more than a mile into the air a reservoir of ether attached to a parachute. This, being released at the highest point, floats gently back to earth, the condensation being caused by the evaporation of the ether. It is said to be decidedly efficacious even where there is scarcely a trace of cloud.

Cut It.

"Yes," said the college student, "dad got the idea that I was cutting up too much, and so he cut in and threatened to cut down my allowance unless I took a brace. I felt all cut up at first, but I didn't want my allowance cut off or cut into just for a little funny business, and so I cut it out." And the listening foreigner remarked, "What did the young man say?"—Somerville Journal.

Breaking It Gently.

Captain of Steamer—Madam, it gives me great pain to be obliged to tell you that your little boy's hat has blown overboard. Fond Mother—Why, I thought it was tied on with a string! Captain—Yes. That was just the trouble. The string did not break.

Corrected.

"Miss Isabel, you are not at all like other girls."

"That is not a compliment, Mr. Spooner. You should say that other girls are not at all like me."

Quite Proper.

Little Rollo—Pop, what is an upright piano? Pop—One that plays only sacred music, my son.—Woman's Home Companion.

Not Conceited.

She—All men are conceited. He—Not all. I see a man every day who is not conceited. She—Where? He—In the mirror.

For Women $2.50

No other modern design so fully meets all the requirements of the ideal ladies shoe. It is an uneaqualed combination of style and fit, shapeliness and comfort. The high but rather broad heal, arched instep and slightly manish appearance makes it the swellest sort for the feet.

If you are a victim of faulty shoes, we can soon enable you to walk with ease and comfort, and eventually cure your tender feet. These shoes will wear twice as long as the ordinary "ready made" shoes and have a style and finish that is essentially distinctive.

Modest Claims Often Carry the Most Conviction.

When Maxim, the famous gun inventor, placed his gun before a committee of judges, he stated its carrying power to be much below what he felt sure the gun would accomplish. The result of the trail was therefore a great surprise, instead of disappointment. It is the same with the manufacturers of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. They do not publicly boast of all this remedy will accomplish, but prefer to let the users make the statements. What they do claim; is that it will positively cure diarrhoea, dysentery, pains in the stomach and bowels and has never been known to fail. For sale by L. Taggart; J. E. Rev. Swallow After Emery.

HARRISBURG, July 22.—The qualifications of Lewis Emery, the fusion candidate for Governor, entitling him to a place at the head of the Prohibition ticket are once more called in question by Rev. Silas C. Swallow. He has again written to Mr. Emery telling him bluntley what he thinks of his recent letter to Mr. Likins and using the same letter of denunciation as a lever for getting a 700-word magazine article from the fusion candidate. The letter is as follows:

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 21, 1906.

My Dear Mr. Emery—The letter I wrote you on July 9, was a private communication and for your sake I regret that you made it public. There were but two copies made; one I sent you, the other was in my office, and unless copied surreptitiously by some one, I did not give it out. The fact that you read it on Monday to Professor Rockwood and others in your office, and sent copies to Mr. Likins and others, renders it probable that you gave it publicity for the purpose of working the sympathy plan and at the same time bid ding for the whiskey vote.

I wrote it with the best of motives to ascertain from you the truth or falsity of certain allegations touching your lack of fitness for a place at the head of the Prohibition ticket. This it was my duty to do, as I must soon as a committeeman, conscientiously pass on that fitness, and my vote might determine your admission or rejection as a Prohibition candidate for the highest office in the gift of the voters of Pennsylvania. I expected you would answer me respectfully, since I had thus addressed you, briefly stating which allegations, if any, were false and which, if any were true.

SAYS LETTER IS AN EVASION.

In your letter to Mr. Likins, editor of The Pecpel's Tribune, Uniontown, Pa., you evasively attempt to answer only a few of the inquiries found in my letter to you. You grow "indignant" and effect to be "insulted," and your "wife breaks down" because I ask you whether the rumor is correct that "you place intoxicants before your guests in your own home." Then after all this gush and self martyrdom you admit that "in my house and upon my sideboard is the liquor of the family. It is there for my family and friends if they so desire." Why, then, be "insulted" at being asked whether a rumor is true while you admit the truth of it? You say of your wife "she has taught her children the dangers of liquor drinking."

What would you think of a father who kept a nest of vipers in his dining room for the amusement of his children, over whom the wife must stand guard day and night in order to protect them from being bitten? Or have you never read that "wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." and that other warning of the wisest King, "Look not upon the wine when it is red.. ....for at last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder," or are you a disciple of Ingersoll, ignoring "The Word?"

You say of me: "If he had heard this scandal namely, placing intoxicants before guests, etc., "he should have hurled the relator to the ground." "He should have stricken him to the earth, etc. But what for? Making a statement which you admit is true? If it is a scandal to ask a man privately whether he sets liquors before his guests, then how scandalous it is for a man to do such a thing. Brother Emery, suffer a word of exhortation—"Quit it forever."

VARYING DEGREES OF "DRUNK."

"You say, none of my family nor myself are total abstainers, none are drunkards, none are tipplers, none are even moderate drinkers." You claim to have been drunk but "once in life when a boy." In this I rejoice with you remembering that the word "drunk" is a variable term. One man admits he has been drunk only when he awakes in the guard house, another when dragged out of the gutter, another when he has had a mid-night "bout with the boys" and on his return home has lost the key or the key hole or both, while others honestly admit that a glass of beer or wine or champagne produces an abnormal, though to the onlooker an invisible effect.

However the half-million railroad men now under total abstinence orders from their employers have been given to understand that because a single drink of intoxicating liquor taken at any time may blunt their sensibilities, that therefore drunkenness is to be certainly avoided only by absolutely abstaining. You say "none of us love whisky, and we rarely drink it." We answer people differ in their tastes and appetites. Some prefer gin, others rum, others brandy and still others beer or champagne. Some of the most dangerous drunkards in the world are wine and beer drinkers. "They rarely drink whiskey."

You say I was in California when the brewery was located in Bradford," and "how could I take stock in it or secure its location in Bradford?" Will you swear that you did not send a telegram which determined the matter? You say "had I been at home I would not have withheld my donation from that brewery, no more than I would from the churches, schools or hospitals,"

Well! Well! Here is another Burchard come to judgement. All will remember the "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" bull that defeated Blaine and elected Cleveland. Were you really yourself when you wrote that sentence, or did some Burchard write it for you?

STILL ANOTHER COMPLAINT.

If the Christian people of Pennsylvania can gulp you down after that, if the young people's societies and the Young Men's Christian Associations can vote to put a man at the head of our government who places the drink factories on a par with the church, the school and the hospital, than we miss our guess.

The churches teach in exact language that "No political party ought to receive the support of Christian men so long as it fails to put itself on record in an attitude of open hostility to the liquor traffic. Yet your benevolence bunches the brewery and the church. The shool books in nearly every State in the Union teach that the product of the brewery is not food but poison. That it blunts the moral sensibilities, clouds the ntellect and rapidly deteriorates man's physical powers; but you contribute with equal facility and felicity to the brewery and to the school, two antagonistic institutions.

The product of the brewery more than any other agency, fills our hospitals, insane asylums and almshouses, and yet you are as liberal in your contributions to the bane of society as to its blessings. The product of the brewery has impoverished thousands of families in our State, rendering children shoeless, hatless and naked, and their pinched and blanched faces and fleshless limbs are all sad reminders that the church and the schools are closed to them, and only the hospital or almshouse remain open to them, and yet you have the brazen impudence to boast that you are as happy in bestowing your benefactions on the grestest agency of misery and crime as when bestowing them on the agencies established to prevent crime and to save the criminal.

Your reference to the beverage use of liquor in your father's house might serve as an excuse for your own low estimate of civic virtue had you lived these 69 years in some other country where the public conscience had not be eneducated by press, pulpit and platform as it has in America. If ignorant here, it is wilfull and inexcusable.

LOOKED TO HIM AS A MOSES.

To seriously treat the liquor business as a legitimate industry to be encouraged by good men, at a time when 38,000,000 of our population have driven it from their midst, when railroads and other large employers, of labor are establishing prohibition for their employes, and when life insurance companies, civic and elemosynary societies are closing their doors to the patrons of the brewery gives evidence of a moral and mental obtuseness in you which in their sober second thought will prevent the moral voters of this State from honoring you with their suffrage.

This is to be deplored, for we fondly looked to you as our Moses to lead the united reform forces in overthrowing the gang rule that for a quarter of a century has deprived us of an honest count of the Prohibition vote. But so it is. Your letter to Mr. Likins, if there were no other evidence, is quite sufficient to establish your utter unfitness to rule as Governor six millions of people, a majority of whom still believe that the church, the school and the hospital have claims infinitely superior to the brewery, the saloon and the brothel.

Your insinuation that my private letter to you was inspired by some corporate or corrupt influence is false. I am as much opposed to the Standard Oil Company's methods as are you, and I wish to assure you that in fighting them I never have and never will build a succession of oil refineries and sell them out to the Standard at ten times their value and fight them only when they refuse to buy another.

And now, Mr. Emery, an item of business. I am soliciting from each of the five Gubernatorial candidates an article, not to exceed 700 words stating what each stands for in this campaign, to be accompanied by a half-tone cut of the author. I want these articles for the September number of The Church Forum, a monthly periodical edited and published by me. Extra copies may be sent to addresses furnished by you at a reasonable price.

Trusting that while we do not "see eye to eye" on some things, yet that we may strive to emphasize our agreements rather than our differences, I beg to remain,

Yours fraternally,

S. C. SWALLOW.

And what do you suppose the rascal did—with nobody but Dick to watch him? Why, he did what any healthy young man in love would have done; pressed his lips to the girl's hair, his eyes filling and half a sob in his parched throat. He dolefully pictured himself a modern Antiochus, dying of love and never confessing it. Then he kissed her hair again; only her hair, for somehow he felt that her lips were as yet inviolable to his touch.

Fainting is but transitory; by and by she opened her eyes and stared vaguely into the face above her. I do not know what she saw there; whatever it was caused her to struggle to her feet. There was color enough in her cheeks now; and there was a question, too, in her eyes. Of Warburton it asked. "What did you do when I lay there unconscious?" I'm afraid there was color in his face, too. Her gaze immediately roved up the road. There was no Pirate, only a haze of dust. Doubtless he was still going it, delighted over the trouble he had managed to bring about. Warburton knelt at the girl's side and brushed the dust from her skirt. She eyed him curiously. I shan't say that she smiled; I don't know, for I wasn't there.

Meanwhile she made several futile attempts to put up her hair, and as a finality she braided it and let it hang down her back. Suddenly and unaccountably she grew angry—angry at herself, at James, at the rascally horse that had brought her to this pass. Warburton saw something of this emotion in her eyes, and to avoid the storm he walked over to Dick, picked up the reins, and led him back.

"If you will mount Dick, Miss," he said, "I'll lead him home. It's about five miles, I should say."

The futility and absurdity of her anger aroused her sense of the ridiculous; and a smile, warm and merry, flashed over her stained face. It surprised her groom.

"Thank you, James. You were right. I ought not to have ridden Pirate. I am punished for my conceit. Five miles? It will be a long walk."

"I shan't mind it in the least," replied James, inordinately happy; and he helped her to the saddle and adjusted the left stirrup.

So the journey home began. Strangely enough, neither seemed to care particularly what had or might become of Pirate. He disappeared, mentally and physically. One thing dampened the journey for Warburton. His "game leg" ached cruelly, and after the second mile (which was traversed without speech from either of them), he fell into a slight limp. From her seat above and behind him, she saw this limp.

"You have hurt yourself?" she asked gently.

"Not to-day, Miss."—briefly.

"When he ran away with you?"

"No. It's an old trouble."

"While you were a soldier?"

"Yes."

"How?"

He turned in surprise. All these questions were rather unusual. Nevertheless he answered her, and truthfully.

"I was shot in the leg by a drunken Indian."

"While on duty?"

"Yes." Unconsciously he was forgetting to add "Miss", which was the patent of his servility. And I don't think that just then she noticed this subtraction from the respect due her.

It was eleven o'clock when they arrived at the gates. She dismounted alone. Warburton was visibly done up.

"Any orders for this afternoon, Miss?"

"I shall want the victoria at three. I have some shopping to do and a call to make. Send William after Pirate. I am very grateful for what you have done."

He made no reply, for he saw her father coming down the steps.

"Betty," said the colonel, pale and worried, "have you been riding Pirate? Where he is, and what in the world has happened?"—noting the dust on her habit and her tangled hair.

She explained. She told the story rather coolly Warburton thought, but she left out no detail.

"You have James to thank for my safety, father. He was very calm and clear-headed."

Calm and clear-headed! thought Warburton.

The girl then entered the house, humming. Most women would have got out the lavender salts and lain down the rest of the day, considering the routine of a fashionable dinner, which was the chief duty of the evening.

"I am grateful to you, James. My daughter is directly in your care when she rides, and I give you full authority. Never permit her to mount any horse but her own. She is all I have, and if anything should happen to her—"

"Yes, sir; I understand."

The colonel followed his daughter; and Warburton led Dick to the stables, gave orders to William, and flung himself down on his cot. He was dead tired. And the hour he had dreaded had come! He had to drive her through the shopping district. Well, so be it. If any one exposed him, very good. This groom business was decidedly like work. And there was that confounded dinner-party, and he would have to limp around a table and carry soup plates! And as likely as not he would run into the very last person he expected to see.

Which he did.

CHAPTER XIV.

AN ORDEAL OR TWO.

Mr. Robert vows that he will never forgive me for the ten minutes' agony which I gratuitously added to his measure. It came about in this wise. I was on my way down Seventeenth street that afternoon, and it was in front of a fashionable apartment house that I met him. He was seated on his box, the whip at the proper angle and his eyes riveted on his pair's ears. It was the first time I had seen him since the day of the episode at the police-station. He was growing thin. He did not see me, and he did not even notice me till I stopped and the sounds of my heels on the walk ceased. Arms akimbo. I surveyed him.

"Well?" I began. I admit that the smile I offered him was a deal like that which a cat offers a cornered mouse.

He turned his head. I shall not repeat the word he muttered. It was very improper, though they often refer to it in the Sabbath-schools, always in a hushed breath, however, as though to full-voice it would only fan the flames still higher.

"What have you to say for yourself?" I went on.

"Nothing for myself, but for you, move on and let me alone, or when I get the opportunity, Chuck, I'll punch your head, glasses or no glasses."

"Brother-in-law or no brother-in-law."

"Chuck, will you go on?"—hoarsely, "I mean it."

I saw that he did. "You don't look very happy for a man who has cracked so tremendous a joke."

"Will you go along?"

"Not till I get good and ready, James. I've told too many lies on your account already not to make myself a present of this joyful reunion. Has Miss Annesley any idea of the imposture?"

He did not answer.

"How did you like waiting in Scott Circle the other night?"

Still no answer. I have half an idea that he was making ready to leap from his box. He ran his fingers up and down the lines. I could see that he was mad through and through; but I enjoyed the scene nevertheless. He deserved a little roasting on the gridiron.

"I am given to understand," I continued, "that you act as butler, besides, and pass soup around the table."

Silence. Then I heard a door close, and saw a look of despair grow on his face. I turned and saw Miss Annesley and Mrs. Chadwick coming down the steps.

"Why, how do you do, Mr. Henderson? Mrs. Chadwick."

"I have already had the pleasure of meeting this famous young orator," purred Mrs. Chadwick, giving me her hand. She was a fashionable, not to say brilliant, intrigante. I knew her to have been concerned indirectly with half a dozen big lobby schemes. She was rather wealthy. But she was seen everywhere, and everywhere was admired. She was as completely at home abroad as here in Washington. She was a widow, perhaps 38, handsome and fascinating, a delightful raconteur, and had the remarkable reputation of never indulging in scandal. She was the repository of more secrets than I should care to discover.

I recall one night at a state function when she sat between the French ambassador and that wily Chinaman, Li Hung Chang. She discoursed on wines in French with the ambassador and immediately turned to the Chinaman and recited Confucius in the original Chinese.

Not until recently did I learn that at one time Karloff had been very attentive to her.

"Where are you bound?" asked Miss Annesley.

"I am on the way to the war department."

"Plenty of room; jump in and we shall drop you there. James, drive to the war department."

Ordinarily I should have declined, as I generally prefer to walk; but in this instance it would be superfluous to say that I was delighted to accept the invitation. I secretly hugged myself as I thought of the driver.

"How is Miss Warburton?" asked Miss Annesley, as she settled back among the cushions.

"Beautiful as ever," I replied, smiling happily.

"You must meet Miss Warburton, Grace,"—speaking to Mrs. Chadwick, who looked at me with polite inquiry. "One of the most charming girls in the land, and as good as she is beautiful. Mr. Henderson is the most fortunate of young men."

"So I admit. She was greatly disappointed that you did not meet her younger brother." First shot at the groom.

"I did expect to meet him, but I understand that he has gone on a hunting expedition. Whom does he resemble?"

"Neither Nancy nor Jack," I said. "He's a good-looking beggar, though, only you can't depend upon him for five minutes at a time. Hadn't seen the family in more than two years. Spends one night at home, and is off again, no one knows where. Some persons like him, but I like a man with more stability. Not but that he has his good points; but he is a born vagabond. His brother expects to get him a berth at Vienna and is working rather successfully toward that end." I wondered how this bit of news affected the groom.

"A diplomat?" said Mrs. Chadwick. "That is the life for a young man with brains. Is he a good linguist?"

"Capital! Speaks French, German and Spanish, besides I don't know how many Indian sign-languages." Now I was patting the groom on the back. I sat facing the ladies, so it was impossible to see the expression on his face. I kept up this banter till we arrived at the department. I bade the ladies good day. I do not recollect when I have enjoyed ten minutes more thoroughly.

An hour in the shopping district, that is to say, up and down Pennsylvania avenue, where everybody who was anybody was similarly occupied, shopping, nearly took the spine out of our jehu. Everywhere he imagined he saw Nancy. And half a dozen times he saw persons whom he knew, persons he had dined with in New York, persons he had met abroad. But true to human nature, they were looking toward higher things than a groom in livery. When there was no more room for bundles, the women started for Mrs. Chadwick's apartments.

Said Mrs. Chadwick in French: "where, in the name of uncommon things, did you find such a handsome groom?"

"I was rather lucky," replied Miss Annesley in the same tongue. "Don't you see something familiar about him?"

Warburton shuddered.

"Familiar? What do you mean?"

"It is the groom who ran away with us."

"Heavens, no!" Mrs. Chadwick raised her lorgnette. "Whatever possessed you?"

"Mischief as much as anything."

"But the risk!"

"I am not afraid. There was something about him that appeared very much like a mystery, and you know how I adore mysteries."

"And this is the fellow we saw in the police-court, sitting among those light o' loves?" Mrs. Chadwick could not fully express her surprise.

"I can't analyze the impulse which prompted me to pay his fine and engage him."

"And after that affair at the carriage-door! Where is your pride?"

"To tell the truth, I believe he did make a mistake. Maybe I hired him because I liked his looks." Betty glanced amusedly at the groom, whose neck and ears were red. She laughed.

"You always were an extraordinary child. I do not understand it in the least. I am even worried. He may be a great criminal."

"No, not a great criminal," said Betty, recollecting the ride of that morning; "but a first-class horseman, willing and obedient. I have been forced to make James serve as butler. He has been under the hands of our cook, and I have been watching them. How I have laughed! Of all droll scenes!"

So she had laughed, eh? Warburton's jaws snapped. She had been watching, too?

"I rode Pirate this morning—"

"You rode that horse?" interrupted Mrs. Chadwick.

"Yes, and he ran away with me in fine style. If it hadn't been for the new groom, I shouldn't be here, and the dinner would be a dismal failure, with me in bed with an arm or leg broken. Heavens! I never was so frightened in all my life. We went so fast against the wind that I could scarce breathe. And when it was all over, fainted like a ninny."

"Fainted! I should have thought you would. I should have fallen off the animal and been killed. Betty, you certainly have neither forethought nor discretion. The very idea of your attempting to ride that animal!"

"Well, I am wiser, and none the worse for the scare . . . James, stop, stop!" Betty cried suddenly.

When this command struck his sense of hearing, James was pretty far away in thought. He was wondering if all this were true. If it was, he must make the best of it; but if it was a dream, he wanted to wake up right away, because it was becoming nightmarish.

"James!" The end of a parasol tickled him in the ribs and he drew up somewhat frightened. What was going to happen now? He was soon to find out. For this was to be the real climax of the day: or, at least, the incident was pregnant with the possibilities of a climax.

"Colonel, surely you are not going to pass us by in this fashion?" cried the girl. They were almost opposite the Army and Navy club.

"Why, is that you, Miss Betty? Pass you by? Only when I grow blind!" roared a lion-like voice. "Very glad to see you, Mrs. Chadwick."

That voice, of all the voices he had ever heard! A chill of indescribable terror flew up and down my jehu's spine, and his pores closed up. He looked around cautiously. It was he, he of all men; his regimental colonel, who possessed the most remarkable memory of any army man west of the Mississippi, and who had often vowed that he knew his subalterns so well that he could always successfully prescribe for their livers!

"I was just about to turn into the club for my mail," declared the colonel. "It was very good of you to stop me. I'll wager you've been speculating in the shops,"—touching the bundles with his cane.

"You win," laughed Betty. "But I'll give you a hundred guesses in which to find out what any one of these packages contains."

"Guessing is a bad business. Whatever these things are, they can add but little to the beauty of those who will wear them; for I presume Mrs. Chadwick has some claim upon these bundles."

"Very adroitly worded," smiled Mrs. Chadwick, who loved a silken phrase.

"We shall see you at dinner to-night?"

"All the battalions of England could not keep me away from that festive board," the colonel vowed. (Another spasm for the groom!) "And how is that good father of yours?"

"As kind and loving as ever."

"I wish you could have seen him in the old days in Virginia," said the colonel, who, like all old men, continually fell back upon the reminiscent. "Handsomest man in the brigade, and a fight made him as happy as a bull-pup. I was with him the day he met your mother,"—softly. "How she humiliated him because he wore the blue! She was obliged to feed him—fortunes of war; but I could see that she hoped each mouthful would choke him."

"What! My mother wished that?"

Mrs. Chadwick laughed. The groom's chin sank into his collar.

Let Cleveland Have His Way.

Ex-President Cleveland used to fish and shoot in the Barnegat Bay district. John Camburn, a guide, says that one cold, wet night Mr. Cleveland got lost. He wandered through the rain and darkness, trying to find his party, but not a house could he see, not a light, nor a road.

Finally he struck a narrow lane, and in due course a house appeared. It was now late. Mr. Cleveland was cold and tired. He thought he could go no farther, so he banged at the door till a window on the second floor went up, and a gruff voice said:

"Who are you?"

"A friend," said Mr. Cleveland.

"What do you want?"

"I want to stay here all night."

"Stay there, then."

And the window descended with a bang, and Mr. Cleveland shouldered his gun again and wearily resumed his journey.—Boston Herald.

"Or," Not "And."

People who have had a wide experience with the ordinary summer boarding-house in a place where the season is short and hay must be made while the sun shines have learned not to expect too much. There are, however, certain limits beyond which economy seldom goes. These limits are evidently unknown or disregarded in a mountain resort to which a meek Bostonian lately strayed. On the morning after her arrival she seated herself at the breakfast-table with hope stirring in her heart of a meal more generous than the last night's supper. The neat, stern featured waitress brought her a small saucer of breakfast food, and bent over her. "We have Graham muffins or white biscuit, ham or eggs," she said with a distinctness of articulation which left no doubt of her meaning. —Youth's Companion.

Chickens Paid for the Doctor.

A farmer's wife who had heard the adage of "imperial Caesar turned to clay stopping a hole to keep the wind away," thought of making practical use of her husband who was helplessly ill with typhoid fever. The old man was having persistently high temperature, and she considered that as his degree of temperature was just the same as that generated by a sitting hen it presented a favorable opportunity to hatch out some fertile eggs which lacked the requisite maternal attention. Accordingly she packed severel dozens of eggs around the body of the patient, who, at the termination of the time usually taken by the hens, hatched out a numerous progeny of stalwart chicks, whose monetary value went to pay the bill presented by the attending physician.

His Reasons.

A southerner was telling of an old colored man in his neighborhood who first joined the Episcopal Church, then the Methodist, and next the Baptist, where he remained. Questioned as to the reason for his church travels, he responded: "Well, suh, hit's dis way: De 'Piscopals is gemman, suh, but I couldn't keep up wid de answerin' back in dey church. De Methodis', dey always holdin' inquiry meetin's, and' I don't like too much inquirin' into. But de Baptis', suh, dey jus' dip' an are done wid hit. I's a Baptis', I is."—Washington Star.

UNDERTAKING.

What is a Backache?

IT IS NATURE'S WARNING TO WOMEN

Diseases of Woman's Organism Cured and Consequent Pain Stopped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"It seems as though my back would break." Women utter these words over and over again, but continue to drag along and suffer with aches in the small of the back, pain low down in the side, "bearing-down" pains, nervousness and no ambition for any task.

Miss Maude Morris

They do not realize that the back is the mainspring of woman's organism, and quickly indicates by aching a diseased condition of the female organs or kidneys, and that the aches and pains will continue until the cause is removed.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been for many years the one and only effective remedy in such cases. It speedily cures female and kidney disorders and restores the female organs to a healthy condition.

"I have suffered with female troubles for over two years, suffering intense pain each month, my back ached until it seemed as though it would break, and I felt so weak all over that I did not find strength to attend to my work but had to stay in bed a large part of the first two or three days every month. I would have sleepless nights, bad dreams and severe headaches. All this undermined my health.

"We consulted an old family physician, who advised that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it regularly and soon found that I could sleep and eat better than I had done for months. Within two months I became regular and I no longer suffer from backache or pain."—Miss Maude Morris, Sec. Ladies' Aid and Mission Society, 85 E. Hunter St., Atlanta, Ga.

BAD COMPLEXIONS

Depraved Blood Causes Pimples and Boils—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make New Blood and Cure Follows.

"I abused my stomach, my blood got out of order and then my face broke out with pimples and boils," says T. E. Robertson, of 197 Addison street, Washington, Pa. "This was over two years ago. My stomach was in bad shape. After eating I would have to rest awhile or I would suffer the most severe pains in my stomach. On arising I would often be so dizzy that I could hardly stand up. The slightest exertion would start my back aching so that I often had to sit down and rest awhile. At times I experienced a pain around the heart which alarmed me but which I suppose came from my stomach trouble.

"I began to break out on the face with pimples and later with boils which confined me to the house a week or more at a time. One day I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People advertised in a pamphlet which was left at the door and I thought I would give them a trial. I took several boxes of the pills before all the pimples and boils left me, but I am now glad to say that my blood is good. I do not have any eruptions and I no longer have the head and stomach troubles I have described. I am very grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and I have recommended them and always will advise those who are suffering from bad blood or stomach trouble to try them."

If you want good health you must have good blood. Bad blood is the root of most common diseases like anæmia, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, nervousness, indigestion, debility, partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50c. per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

COUNT BONI IS CAST OUT.

French Chamber of Deputies Annuls Election of Castellane on Bribery Charge.

Paris.—Despite a protest from the count the French chamber of deputies the other day by 253 votes against 221

COUNT BONI DE CASTELLANE.
(Husband of Anna Gould Ousted from French Chamber of Deputies.)

decided to invalidate the election of Count Boni de Castellane, husband of Anna Gould, as the deputy for the Basses Alpes.

Bereft first of his little American wife and no longer to scatter the millions she brought him from the coffers of Jay Gould, Count Boni found himself arrived at the limit of humiliation when the chamber of deputies ousted him from his seat and besmirched him with insinuations of political corruption and open charges of bribery in buying his election.

Truly the dapper little Frenchman finds that money makes the gentleman, the lack of it the fellow.

He now has few friends. Once the flattered little spendthrift of the boulevards, the pet of titled women, on whom he lavished diamonds and jewels until his wife shut off his supply of money, he has sunk into the position of a man ridiculed and laughed at. Former friends who fawned on him and reaped the fruits of his sensational methods of getting rid of his wife's money now look upon him as a fool who has permitted himself to be found out. Not until the present, however, was any thought ever taken that he might find enemies enough in the chamber to throw him out of his seat.

Now he is mournfully aware of how far fortune has turned against him and at one of the clubs from which he is not yet excluded he declared that the action of his fellow deputies was the result of his "painful family difficulties," made public through his wife's action for divorce.

How the French aristocracy regards Count Castellane in his actions is best shown by the fact that when he offered himself as a member of the Jockey club he was "pilled" by the largest number of black balls ever received by one man.

WHAT DEWEY IS DOING NOW.

THE ADMIRAL PREFERS HARD WORK TO LIFE OF EASE.

Rank Makes Him Independent of President or Secretary of Navy —Is Known as a Well-Groomed Man.

New York.—"What has become of Admiral George Dewey and what is he doing now?"

This inquiry, sent to a St. Louis newspaper, elicited the following information:

Taken all in all there is perhaps no man in the United States in the service of the government or out of it who is in a more enviable position than is Admiral Dewey. Congress has given him the rank, pay and allowances of an admiral of the navy, reviving the rank for his benefit. He is absolutely independent of the secretary of the navy and of the president of the United States.

He cannot be retired and he cannot be disciplined by reduction in rank or any of the other usual means employed. The place gives him an annual income of $15,500.

If he chose to do so he could close down his desk, go home and never turn his hand over in the way of work, either for the navy or anyone else, and his pay and allowances would go on as long as he lives; but the admiral prefers to work and to work hard.

He is at the head of the navy general board, charged with the duty of devising general plans for improvement of the navy, the management of the ships, the handling of officers and men, and the control of the great government shipyards. Every day when he is not at sea for the maneuvers he is at his desk in his office or attending to the meetings of the board.

Admiral Dewey is much loved and much respected. He is a dapper little fellow, not much more than five feet in height. His clothes fit him like the naval uniform, without crease or bag anywhere.

They do say that the admiral's Chinese valet has no less than 20 new suits of clothes and ten pairs of shoes to take care of at a time. The admiral is not a dude, merely a well-groomed man without seeming to have any thought of his personal appearance.

He has but one fad, if fad it may be called, and that is his love for animals. He has one of the finest teams of driving horses in the city and also an ugly-looking English bulldog. The dog went through the battle of Manila Bay with Dewey, so they are real bunkies.

When the admiral was making a tour of inspection of the fleet the dog went along and was allowed the run of a vessel while his master was aboard. On one ship the admiral returned from the men's quarters just in time to encounter the dog sailing in most h[illegible]ed fashion from the officers' quarters with the toe of an officer's boot in hot pursuit.

Admiral Dewey was white with anger and surprise. In a second, when the captain appeared, following the direction of the toe of his boot, the admiral, controlling himself as best he could, demanded:

ADMIRAL DEWEY.
(The Distinguished Naval Hero Is a Hard Worker Through Choice.)

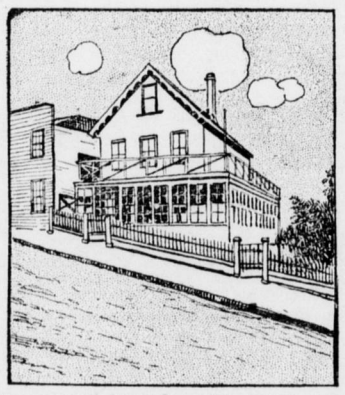
"Sir, what do you mean by kicking my dog in that manner?"

The captain came to a swift salute and his face, it was noted, was as pale and drawn with suppressed anger as was that of the admiral.

"Sir," he said, "I would have kicked that dog if he had been the personal property of the Supreme Being; but, sir, I would not have kicked him, and did not kick him, until he had chewed the legs out of two $15 pairs of uniform trousers and ruined a de luxe edition of the Naval Regulations, as well as killed the ship's feline mascot."

Then they both laughed.

San Francisco Home for Felines



HOME FOR CATS AT SAN FRANCISCO DESTROYED BY FIRE.

San Francisco.—Among the interesting places that the earthquake destroyed in San Francisco is the $30,000 home for cats perched high on the slope of Telegraph hill. The woman who used to own the house, a two-story structure with an attic and sun parlor, was a great friend of cats. Every beat of her heart was for the enemy of rats and mice.

When a big Maltese was not feeling well and had chills running down its back, with a quick pulse and high complexion, the mistress of the dwelling immediately opened her medicine chest and administered the proper remedies—everything from paregoric to squills. The time came, however, when the old lady, who could cure cats, even when they had fits, could not cure herself. Then she died but the cats were not neglected.

She left $30,000 in cash to be used in behalf of the animals, who were given the house for a place of residence. Her will was carefully drawn and stipulated just what should be done and how the cats should be cared for. Probably no pussy was ever more astonished than when the earthquake came. For two blocks around Telegraph hill cat language interspersed with fur was flying in all directions. Unfortunately, the house was destroyed and the cats not killed were dispersed over the city in search of food.

WHY OHIO IS PROUD.

Not much is heard of Ohio as a corn state, but only seven out of the other 44 beat it in the size of the crop.

The average population of the counties of Ohio is about 50,000, but of the 88 only 20 or 21 exceed that limit.

There are more men fit for military duty in Ohio than fought at Mukden, in the Japanese and Russian armies combined.

If the people of Ohio stood side by side, with outstretched arms, touching finger tips, the line would reach from Boston to San Francisco, with a large margin left.

The first settlements in Ohio were made in the southeastern part of the state, but now that section is less populous than almost any other. It contains no great city.

No precious metals have ever been mined in Ohio, but the value of the coal and iron dug out of the Ohio hills every year exceeds that of the gold of Colorado or California.

Only one state—Illinois—which is younger than Ohio is more populous. Illinois is much larger in area. No state later in date of settlement has more inhabitants in proportion to its size.

Attractive Colorado Booklet.

One of the most attractive of the summer vacation booklets that have been issued is "A Colorado Summer," put out by the passenger department of the Santa Fe railroad. The picturesque mountain scenery and the descriptions of it which the booklet gives impress the reader with a new idea of the grandeur of the mountain crags of Colorado, and will start one daydreaming of the time when he can view for himself the magnificence which the booklet describes. After reading the booklet one must certainly be convinced that Colorado offers both pleasure and health for every summer tourist. "A Colorado Summer" may be secured from Mr. W. J. Black, Pass. Traffic Manager, Santa Fe Railway, Chicago.

New Fruit of Value.

A new fruit that seems likely to prove of considerable value has been developed by the cultivation of the very familiar "maypop," a plant which is very familiar in the southern states, quite ornamental, easily grown from seeds and affords a handsome cover for arbors and verandas. It is known to botanists as passiflora incarnata. The fruit in its improved form is somewhat bigger than a hen's egg and decidedly palatable. It looks like a May apple.

Mrs. John Lawson and two daughters and Mrs. Toner and Miss Neilson, of Beechwood, and Mina Reed, of Emporium, were the guests of Mrs. J. F. Sullivan, Tuesday.

W. R. Smith is suffering from an attack of granulated eyelids, but is some better at this writing.

Patrick Farrel left on Erie mail, Monday for Three Valley, British Columbia, where he has secured a good position with the Munday Lumber Co His family will reside in Cameron until he can make arrangements for housekeeping. The many friends of P. Farrel and wife will miss them very much as they were the best of neighbors All unite in wishing them good luck and prosperity in the future. Mrs. Farrel, who has been very ill for the past two weeks, is improving at this writing.

Professor E. D. Krape's male quartette consisting of Alfred Smith, W. W. Johnson, W. R. Smith and J. F. Sullivan, was a very successful feature at the picnic Tuesday. They were encored three times. Great credit is due to E. D. Krape for fitting these uncultivated voices in shape in such a short time. M. Krape sang a bass solo which fairly made the tears come to the eyes of the audience. The quartette will sing at the Rich Valley Opera House Saturday evening.

Mr. Botsford, the genial eperator from Emporium, was a caller in town Tuesday.

J. F. Carson killed four rattlers in Big Run Monday. The skins are on exhibition at Wm. Logue's store.

About two thousand people attended the shop picnic at Tunnel Hill, Tuesday. The weather was fine and everybody enjoyed themselves. Two special trains were run from Renovo returning at 7:20 and 7:30 in the evening.

There are rumors of a brass band being organized in town in the near future. There is no reason why the undertaking should not be a success, as there is plenty of musical talent awaiting cultivation and organization.

A sweet breath adds to the joys of a kiss. You wouldn't want to kiss your wife, mother or sweetheart with a bad breath. You can't have a sweet breath without a healthy stomach. You can't have a healthy stomach without perfect digestion. There is only one remedy that digests what you eat and makes the breath as sweet as a rose—and that remedy is KODOL FOR DYSPEPSIA. It is a relief for sour stomach, palpitation of the heart, and other ailments arising from disorder of the stomach and digestion. Take a little Kodol after your meals and see what it will do for you. Sold by R. C. Dodson.

RICH VALLEY

A number of the valley folks took in the Portage excursion, Sunday.

Leander Barr has accepted a position with G. S. Cutler.

Rev. Dow is assisting Frank Moon with his haying.

Walter Granger visited his Slabtown friends over Sunday. He says he can walk that foot log any old time.

Geo. E. and S. D. Housler were home from Hicks Run over Sunday.

Mr. Fred Peterson of St. Louis arrived here last week and will spend the summer here.

Ray Adams one of Howard Co's mill engineers, visited Rock City, Sunday. Perhaps he had other business at Olean.

The Rich Valley Sunday School will hold a picnic at Frank Sweesey's orchard two weeks from Thursday. All are invited to come and bring your baskets.

Floyd Barton accompanied by the Misses Moon attended church Sunday evening.

Vere Dow visited friends on North Creek Sunday evening.

Louis Evans was visiting his mother Mrs. J. H. Evans, who is spending the summer with her mother, Mrs. Lockwood.

Milton Lewis the Elk Fork carpenter, is employed in town this week.

We were misinformed last week when we said J. F. Sullivan had accepted the position of physical instructor of the A. C. We heard what a very fine athlete the new man was, so we concluded it was Sullivan. Everett Barr has taken charge of the club and we expect to see something doing at once.

NORTH CREEK.

Mrs. Will Smith went to the city Tuesday.

Mrs. S. Housler has been up Rich Valley the past week.

Mesdames Morton and Llewella Moore made a flying trip to Emporium the first of the week.

Guy Brundage and Lilah Berry were up from the city calling on relatives Sunday.

W. J. Leavitt came up Monday, guest of D. N. Chandler and family and will stay to help through haying,. Glad to see you on our streets again, Will.

F. A. Lewis has been very busy the past two weeks haying.

Rev. Dow seemed very pleased to address such a large audience on Sunday last at this place. We take the liberty and invite you all to come every Sunday.

Our road master means business. We see him quite often along our streets, look. it the walks are in good condition.

Gertrude and Myrtle Sweezey were calling on friends Tuesday.

Agnes Taylor spent Sunday night at this place.

May and Blanche Moon spent Tuesday with ther sister, Mrs. Ed. Cool.

Ethel Britton, Walter Brundage and Lulu May Chandler are on the sick list.

The water in our streams have been quite low We wonder if the folks who go bathing in North Creek can find enough water to "even wash their hands?"

Mrs. Florence Cool called on Mrs. Lizzie Chandler and Mrs. Llewella Moore, Tuesday evening.

Mr. Dow, Ernest Housler and Merril Craven are helping through the hays harvest at F. Moon's.

The missionary meeting seems to be a good thing. It is to be held at Mrs. Edith Brundage's, Wednesday of this week. We hope there will be a good turn out. You may expect us there, as we think of joining.

Thomas Britton and family will soon be moving into their new house.

Wm. Lewis was in the city early Monday morning.

The pipe line inspectors were seen on our streets recently.

A Lover of Pigs.

For many years Lord Gardenstone was one of the characters of Edinburgh and as such received a place among the famous Kay's portraits. He was represented riding on an old horse, with a dog in front and a boy dressed in a kilt behind. A detailed account of the picture states that Kay portrayed him as, what he really was, a very timid horseman, mounted on an old hack, which he had selected for its want of spirit, preceded by his favorite dog Smash and followed by a highland boy, whose duty it was to take charge of the horse on arriving at parliament house. His eccentricity took the even stranger form of a strong affection for pigs. He became so much attached to one that he allowed it to share his bed, and when good feeding and rapid growth made it a rather cumbersome bedfellow it was still lodged in comfortable quarters in the apartment. During the daytime it followed him about like a dog. One morning a farmer had occasion to visit his lordship and, being shown into his bedroom, stumbled upon some object. That object gave vent to an uncompromising grunt and squeal of complaint, and from the bed there proceeded a voice, "It is just a bit sow, poor beast, and I laid my breeches on it to keep it warm all night."—Dundee Advertiser.

Eating Ants For Dessert.

Savages, we know, indulge in such luxuries as grubs and locusts, but for a civilized white man to finish up his dinner with a dish of raw ants seems too nasty to be credible. Yet in Mexico it is the custom—and a custom adopted by plenty of colonials and visitors. The ant eaten is called the honey ant and is perhaps as curious an insect as lives. With a tiny head and legs, it has a huge body as big as a large pea, and this is yellow and swollen with excellent honey. In each nest there are 300 or 400 of these honey ants, which are attended by thousands of others. The honey ants hang on to the roofs of the cells in the nest while the others feed them. They are, in fact, living storehouses of winter food. An observer says that if one of the honey ants falls from his perch a worker will go and pick him up and replace him. This feat is equivalent to a man walking up the face of a cliff carrying a large buffalo or cart horse on his back.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says:—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

Bottles only. Relieves indigestion, sour stomach, belching of gas, etc.
